

What you can do with your photos

As you get all your photos in digital format, here are some ideas of what you can do and experiment with your photos. Below we have them divided into those with a fun element and some are for more official uses

(1) Fun with Photos

You may be starting a tradition or carrying on with a tradition - most people like to print and frame their photos. Depending on the package you choose, we may print an A4 photographic print for you or you can print it yourself to any size and with any frame you like.

- Over the last couple of years, printing your photos onto canvas has again become popular
- Many people like to email their pictures to family and friends living away
- People also use the photos to incorporate into their personal card designs for Christmas cards and for their party invitations
- Having the digital format of your own photos means you can print them onto an endless amount of materials from fabric, plastic, wood, metal etc
- People use the photos to upload to their social media accounts
- We also mention to people that they might like to have their family present for the photos.

Some people like to pose and other people like a natural photo of the family playing around the front lawn

(2) File those Photos

As well as photographing fun scenes, we also recommend photographing 'sterile photos' this is where all personal items such as cars, toys and other equipment are removed which would otherwise date the photograph. This photo can then be used for a number of reasons for official use, down the line

- This photo can be used as an aid for a planning application eg to extend your house or building
- Marketing purposes - a home owner would find this picture useful, if putting the house up for sale as it can be used for brochures and to attract buyers
- A business owner can use the photo to show their premises when advertising - as a clever marketing aid
- For insurance reasons - should your house / building suffer damage, you will have a picture of how things were before the damage, this can provide dramatic visuals following damage and hasten claims
